

Management Tries to Deny Nurses a Voice!

Over and over again, management has tried to do everything it can to prevent nurses from being the voice for our patients.

Last week management refused to bargain, claiming nurses were no longer interested in trying to fix problems with patient care or our jobs. Management actually claims that nurses want management to have all the control and make all the decisions, by taking away our united voice with the union.

We have stood united throughout this process and we won't stop fighting for what we deserve. Our bargaining team is fighting for:

- Fair wages
- A real voice in patient care
- Patient safety

Cut along dotted line and give to a bargaining team member.

Stand United for a Strong Contract

We, dedicated and professional registered nurses of the Corona Regional Medical Center, stand united in our desire to improve patient care.

I continue to authorize and support UNAC/UHCP to represent me and to bargain collectively with my employer on my behalf. I demand that hospital administration return to the bargaining table and negotiate in good faith with my union.
